“Throughout the years, BCU has been there to help us grow and expand.”

Since that day long ago when Denso first opened its doors, we have never been disappointed about our decision to invest in Battle Creek. All the reasons that brought us here are still in abundance today. Throughout the years, BCU has been there to help us grow and expand and optimize our manufacturing capabilities. They helped us foster the close-knit relationships with the community and local governments that have enabled us to realize our true potential at this location.

In my role as President and CEO of Southwest Regional Rehabilitation Center, I've found the same support from BCU as I got at Denso. BCU helps us bridge the private sector with the public sector so that we enhance our mutual growth and prosperity.
